Mrs. Eckart,
It's been great having you for a teacher this year and last. Have a fun summer.

Mrs. Eckart,
We enjoyed your class very much. You're a great teacher. We wish you very much happiness in coming years.
Yolanda BACHTA

It was morning and the new sun sparkled gold across the ripples of a gentle sea.

The years ahead hummed and glowed with promise.
We were determined to go still higher tomorrow.
New sights, new thoughts, new questions.

Talking quietly with us all, a teacher would help us understand.
We would choose our next world through what we learned in this one.
There is so much to learn!

One school was finished, and the time had come for another to begin.
We gave one last look across to where we had learned so much.
We smiled and we thought.
Our race to learn had begun.

Activities

We on the yearbook staff take no pride in what we have to say to the student body on this page. However, since it falls on us to reflect the 73-74 year at AHS, we feel we must convey the growing feeling of apathy concerning school activities in general; clubs and organizations in specific.

Many students feel that school offers them nothing to do outside of the usual academic curriculum, yet when they are presented with opportunities to get involved and change the current forms of many extracurricular activities, they refuse to do so. If the complaint is that these clubs are meaningless, then who is to blame but the student body for not making them meaningful?

How can students remain apathetic to their opportunities to change the quality of AHS life, when they recognize that change is desperately needed? How can our liberal minded students support the idea of involvement as presented by the war demonstrations of a few years ago, and the "impeach Nixon" concern, and still remain completely ignorant of their immediate surroundings? We at the yearbook find the inconsistency appalling.

Here lie the lasting remains of (from left to right) the Biology Club, Camera Club, the Personality Club, the Future Teachers Club, the Chemistry Club, the Environment Club, and the Literary Club, etc. deceased due to neglect on the part of the AHS student body. May they be better appreciated where they are now.

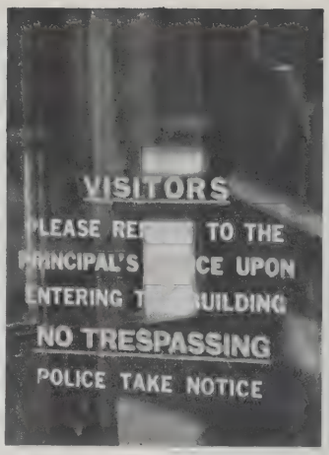

"All that we have is taken for naught,
'till we have it no more."

MUSIC

The vocal department of music at AHS, including Madrigals, Chorale, and Choralettes, was as beneficial as always to those who were involved in it's program and who appreciated what it had to offer.

The Chorale, the main performing group, was kept active during the year. The now-traditional activities included Sing Out, the Exchange with another high school music group in the nearby states, and major participation in the operetta. Patti Haynes, Bill Lindsay, Joy Fournier, Carolyn Mish, Ginger Skovholt, and Dori Chmielewski headed up the list of officers.

Madrigals and Choralettes, off-shoots of Chorale, gave the more individualistic touch to music. Both groups participated in a Christmas program at the Eastfield Mall, and a day of entertaining the "troops" at local elementary schools. Mrs. Mary Callahan again availed her talents to the Chorale as advisor.

BAND

The Agawam High "Marching Mohawks" Band, through the excellent instruction of Mr. Darcy Davis, has had another successful year. They won a number of parade awards, and qualified for the National Marching Field Competition at Philadelphia.

Honors won by the band and Color Guard during the fall were the Best Color Guard award at the Holyoke Centennial Parade, and the Best Band trophy at the Columbus Day Parade. Agawam proudly took fifth place honors at the Philly Contest in the afternoon parade competition.

Band officers John Nascembeni, Elaine Gregory, Donna Hulse, and Steve Bailey helped execute an AHS first, the "Marchathon." The band was able to raise over $4,000 toward their expenses in attending the national contest. Also new this year were sophomores in the Color Guard.

Considering it's hard work and effort, the "Mohawk" band can be considered an asset to Agawam.

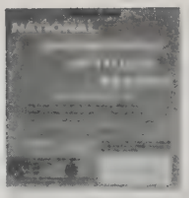

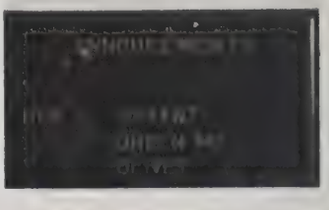

OFFICE OF STUDENT AFFAIRS

The 1974 Office of Student Affairs was marked by a desire to provide those entertaining events which one remembers long after the last iota of Ancient History disappears from the mind, as well as a commitment to fulfill the wishes of the student body and to resolve conflicts between the administration and the students. Activities initiated by the Office included the traditional Winter Olympics on the week before Christmas vacation, as well as a bake sale and movie that same week. A Bike-a-thon scheduled for the Spring and a student lounge also were planned on by the Office. The money raised by the these various activities was used toward scholarships for senior members of the OSA and to aid the financial situation of the Senior class.

LIBRARY STAFF

Once again, the Library Staff has proved itself invaluable to the smooth functioning of the library. With the coming of many new books this year, the staff was kept busy filing cards and shelving books. Yet not all time was spent at work. Raising money for graduating staff seniors and enjoying a field trip took the spotlight from books for awhile.

Ms. Charlotte Shimel, advisor, and Mrs. Catherine O'Keefe are also to be commended for keeping the peace during study periods, and for their able assistance to both students and faculty.

A.V.A. CLUB

The A.V.A. Club, which includes the library and the A.V.A. room provided its aid for the benefit of the community and the school. The students gave much of their time to the assistance of the faculty in setting up projectors, mimeographing and video-taping hockey and girl's basketball games, among many other things. Their civic services ranged from setting up microphones and projectors for clubs such as Unico, to adjusting the lighting for the Agawam theatrical group, the Chalkliners.

A.V.A. advisor, Mr. Ralph Zavarella, commented that there was still much potential to be tapped. Capable of opening up "exciting possibilities" was the T.V. studio, the main acheivement of A.V.A.

The A.V.A. provided an indispensable service both to the community and the school, and promises more for the future.

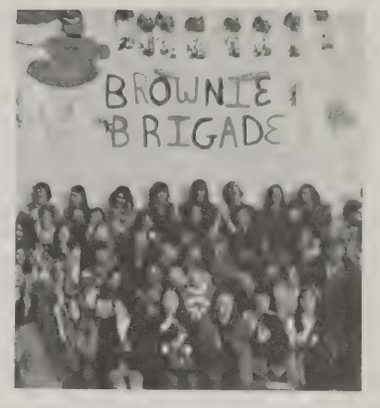

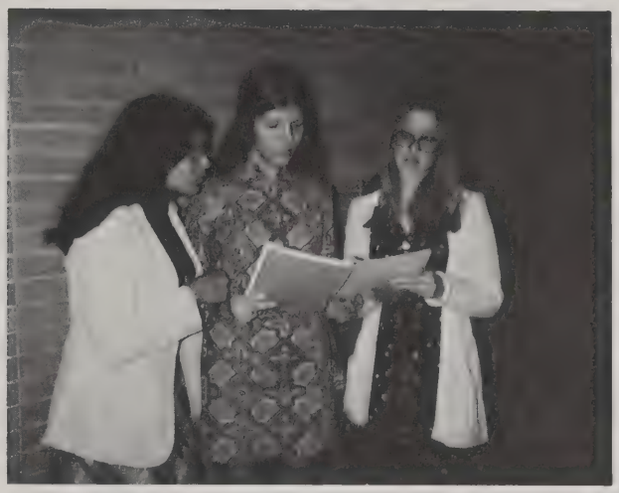

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

"It's an elite society" is just one way to classify the Eleanor H. Smith Chapter of the National Honor Society, according to Miss Jane Durkan, advisor, who by a mathematical theorum shared in the eliteness of the group.

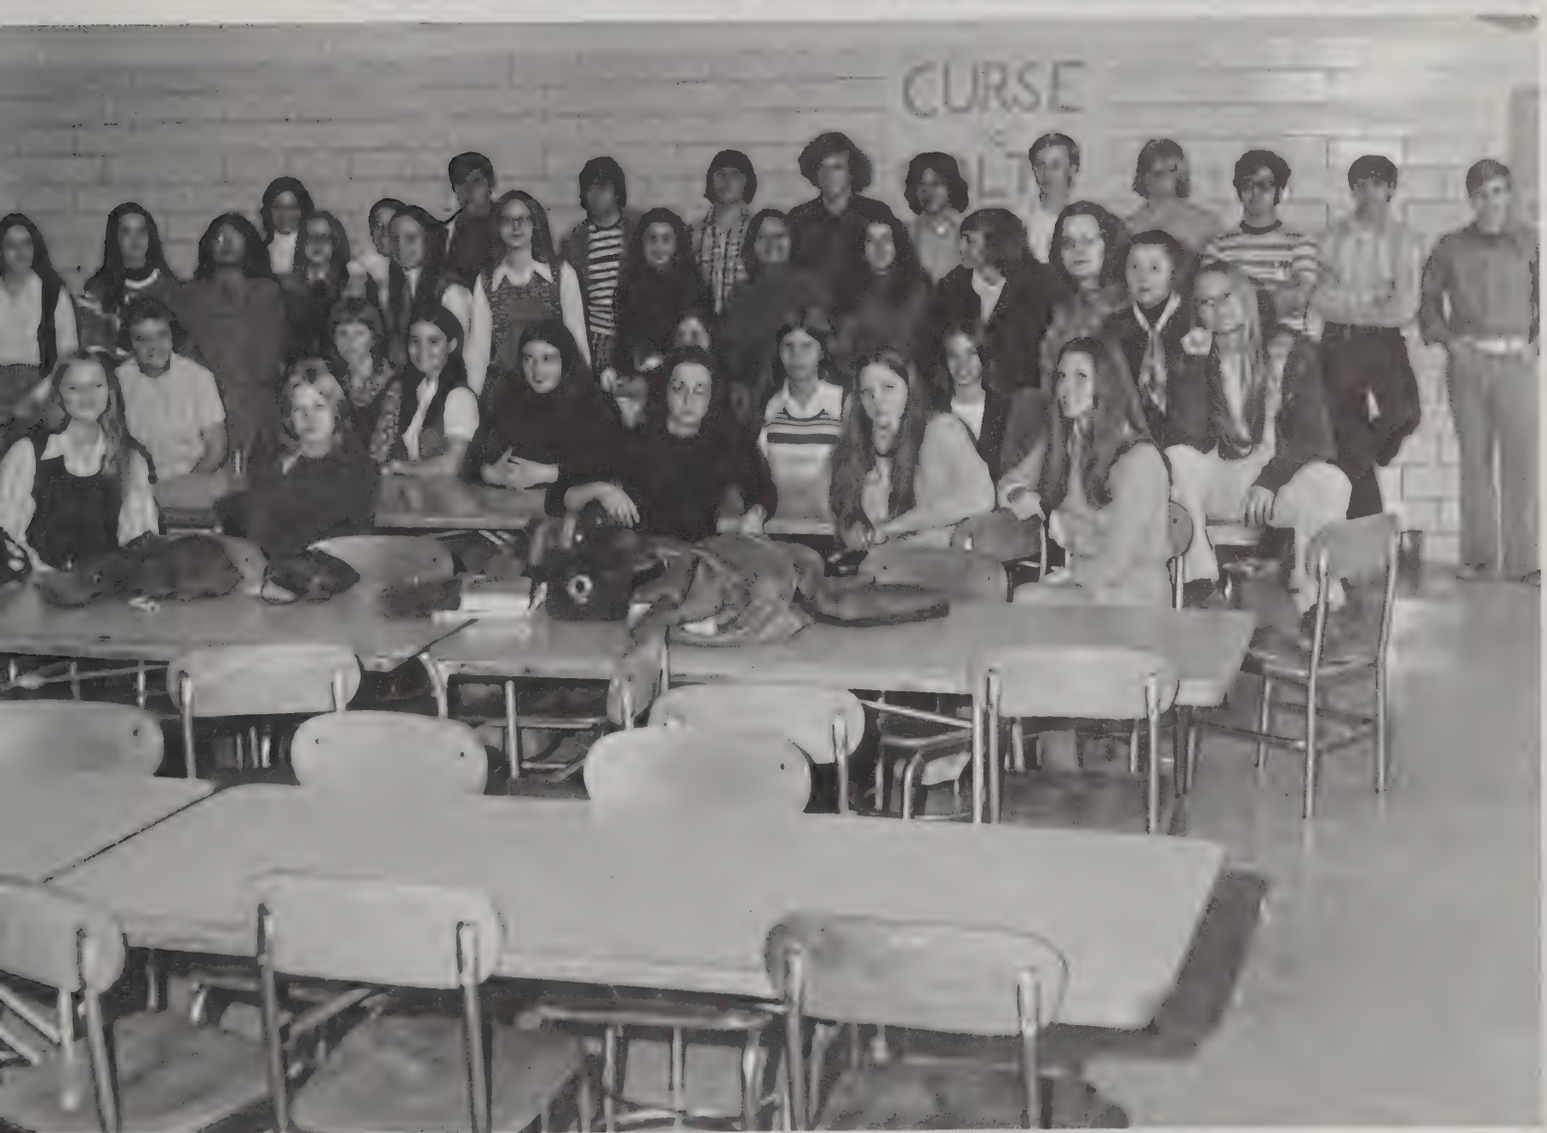

This society was created to spark a bit of enthusiasm for what AHS scholastically had to offer, to promote citizenship and tasteful character. It has succeeded in making the necessary eighty-five or over average something to work for, and membership something to be proud of.

N.H.S. members, reluctant to be honored on stage for their efforts, agreed upon a coffee hour for pins and donuts to be distributed, and a speaker talked to the group. Joanne Morawski, president, Tina Hamel, vice-president, and Elizabeth Sosnowich headed up the group as Senior officers.

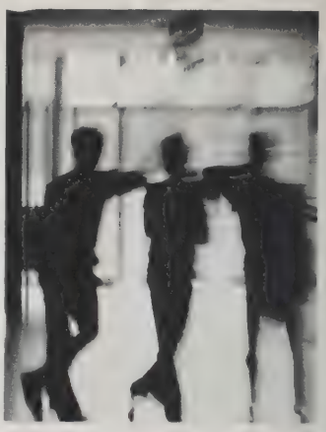

MATH LEAGUE

To challenge the unbridled brain power of twenty school's selective math students through timed math problems is to be a member of the Math League at AHS. It's seven members — Mary Gentile, Patti Haynes, Andrew Soffen, Michael Sopet, Mary Loss, Bob Borgatti and Mary Ann Rogers — represented our school at competitions held five times yearly. The league served to bring together math-orientated students in a competitive atmosphere, and was brightened up by the prospect of a money prize for good performance. Since the league had no officers, Miss Jane Durkan took over organizational responsibilities as advisor.

CHESS CLUB

Competitive battles between rooks and bishops, pawns and knights, comprised the meetings of the 1974 Chess Club. The members of the club learned to master strategic moves and the art of chess as a whole, which they proved in the annual tournaments held in the spring.

Following in the footsteps of Bobby Fischer this year were president Joanne Whittle, vice-president and treasurer Andrew Soffen, and secretary Fred Soffen. Mr. Edward Stentaford, advisor, acted as referree for the matches.

Tournaments held after school proved to be exciting, but nerveracking. Only "en passant", "check", "castle", and finally "check mate" broke the member's deep concentration necessary for the game of chess. Experience and competition were the main objectives for the 1974 Chess Club.

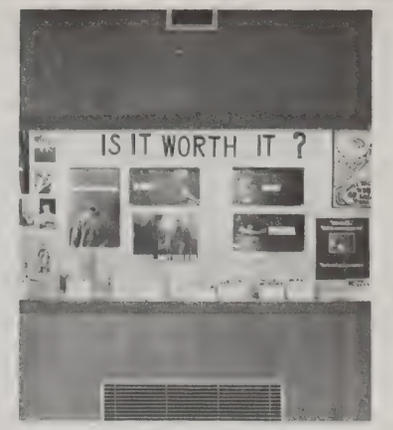

JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE

The Junior Classical League was novel, a club unlike any other at AHS. Formerly called the Latin Club, the League was a member of the nation-wide Junior Classical League. The members benefitted by not studying only Latin, but worldwide classical life as well.

The advisor Mrs. Mary Charest felt the League encouraged an interest and appreciation of Greek and Roman literature and art among young people. It served to give them some understanding of the debt of our own culture to that antiquity.

The members actively delved into the past by recreating the dress, the art and lifestyle of many nations.

The League was led in these activities by Joanne Bigda, president; Dawn Corbin, treasurer; and Dawn Paro, secretary.

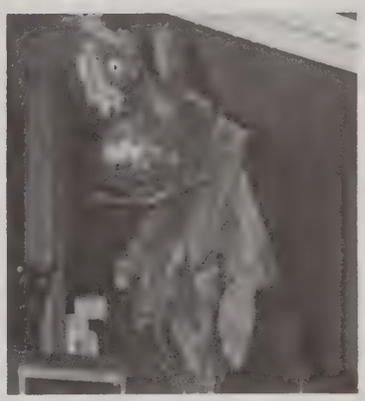

SPANISH CLUB

Students who took Spanish and whose intrests were piqued by the views of Spanish culture and geography presented in class inevitably found themselves members of the Spanish Club. Activities included playing games, listening to Spanish music, acting out skits, and listening to different speakers. The high point of the year was at Christmas time, when the club held a fiesta complete with the traditional pinata and a range of Spanish pastries baked by the members themselves. This year's officers were — Bill Gamelli, president; Donna Hulse, vice-president; Sandi Bauman, secretary; and Tom Lancour, treasurer.

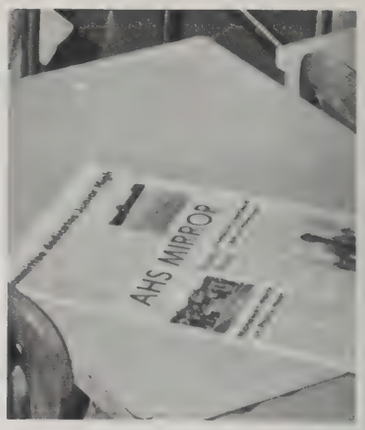

MIRROR STAFF

"The Mirror is one of the most vital examples of high school journalism I've seen." This quotation is something the Mirror staff can be proud of, especially since it came from their advisor, Mrs. Elizabeth Lasky.

As a newcomer this year, she saw the Mirror as, "a very important part of the education process at AHS. Besides reporting the events, the paper is a forum for thoughtful opinion on far reaching subjects. With the voting age at eighteen, high school journalism takes on greater responsibility. It's scope is broadened; its function becomes that more urgent. The Mirror seeks to become responsive to these new concerns."

The editor-in-chief Virginia Broz felt the 1974 staff did a fine job putting out an impossible ten issues. Somehow the Mirror staff managed to do the impossible very professionally.

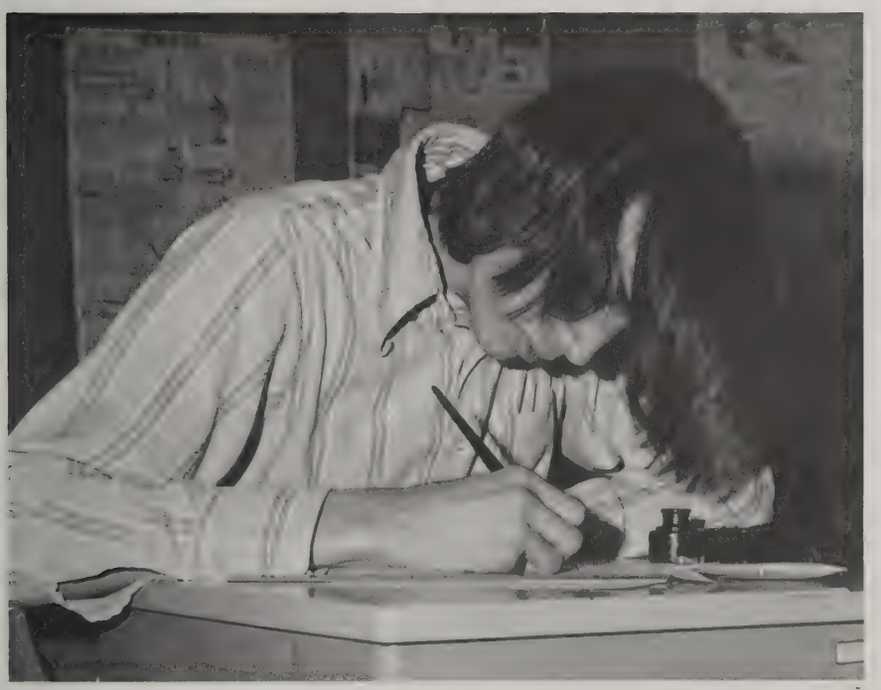

1 Ginny includes typing along with many other duties as editor.
2 Diane Mallory and Mike Petrucci face the grim prospect of a "dummy" layout.
3 Bill Spear and Hal Stuart portray the lighter side of a newspaper.
4 Asst. editor Mike Plasse reviews copy with co-worker Joe Gazillo.
5 Ron Ashton — Mirror Art Director and Layout Coordinator.
6 Sports writer Rick Sardella hard at work.

ART CLUB

If the walls of AHS have looked more colorful this year, it was because of the talented work of the Art Club. The creative members of the club painted various murals and drawings throughout the school. Under the advisement of Mrs. Sadowsky and officers Julie McCaffrey, president; Noreen Krygowski, vice-president; Bill Gamelli, secretary; and Tom Lancour, treasurer showed their artistic abilities at an art show and exhibit, and travelled to New York City Museums. Also added to their active agenda was the painting of the Agawam Food Mart windows. By the looks of things, Agawam may have produced future Picassos.

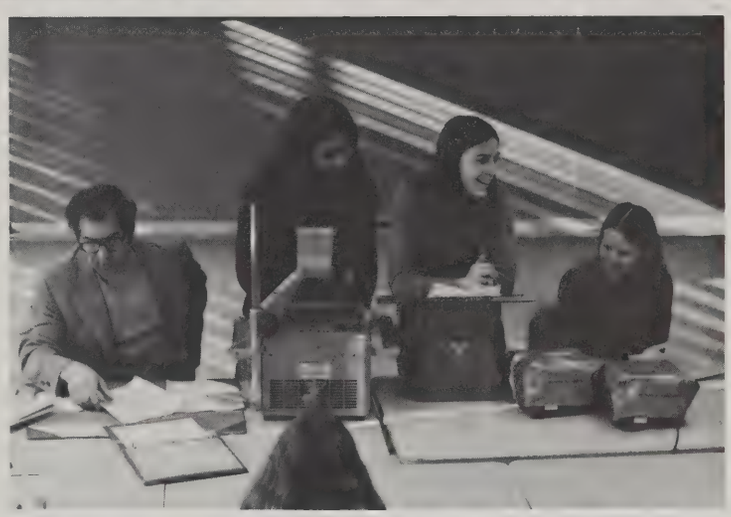

BUSINESS CLUB

The purpose of the Business Club is to organize scholarships for deserving students enrolled in the Business curriculum. Under the supervision of Mr. Altobelli, the officers this year were: Beth Wislocki, President, Laurie O'Connor, Vice President, Sandi Sweet, Treasurer, and Linda Pisano, Secretary. Each year, through money earned from candy sales, bake sales and pure hard work, the members plan a field trip. This year, they went to Boston to see the government in operation. The members of the Business Club hope to have enough reserve funds to award another scholarship this year . . . good work!

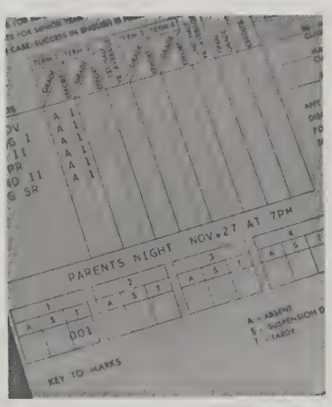

AS SCHOOLS MATCH WITS

This year, the hard working As Schools Match Wits team under the able guidance of Mr. O'Brien and Mrs. Hamilton suffered a disappointing loss to Amherst. The team of Jeff Orr, Bob Tetreault and Dan Williams under the leadership of captain Mike Walsh worked hard with alternates Nancy Skovolt and Jim Bowden to prepare for the match. Amherst had won three games in a row prior to their match with Agawam and we were "just another victim", in the words of Mr. O'Brien.

Next year Jeff Orr and Dan Williams will return for their third year on the team with John Kwiat and Dave Kerr as rookies. In future years, Mr. O'Brien hopes to use the T.V. studio in room 18 for practice to simulate actual studio conditions.

SKI CLUB

A fast moving group at AHS were the members of the Ski Club. Last year they toured France, this year they visited val Gardena, Italy.

The major goal of the club is to visit as many different ski areas as possible. The members try to see different countries "on skis", and take advantage of the opportunity to travel. The advisor, Mr. Joseph, believes: "Traveling is as much or more of an education than that gained in a classroom."

The main activity of the majority of the club members was their Wednesday skiing at Mt. Tom. These trips as well as those to more distant slopes were supervised by Mr. Joseph and the officers, Jim Marcus, president; Greg Meister, secretary; and Charles Dwyer, treasurer.

The ski club is a traveling classroom in a manner of speaking, designed to accommodate skiers with lower group rates and opportunities to "see the world".

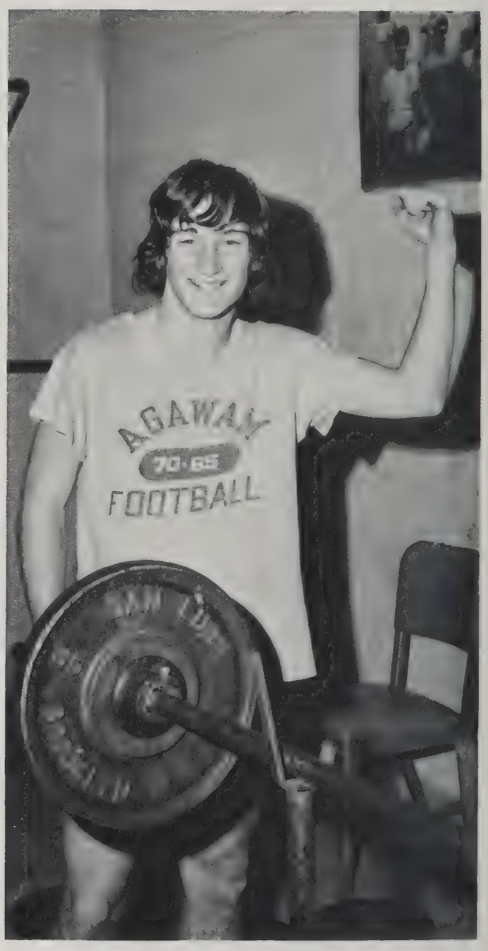

WEIGHTLIFTING CLUB

Advised by Coach Joseph Modzelewski, there is no intrapersonal competition in such an activity as the Weightlifting Club; each member must set a personal goal such as the "200" Club or even the "300" Club. Reasons for joining the club vary from improving one's physical condition, to staying in shape over the winter, to preparing for another sport. The Weightlifting Club has aided athletes such as Mark DeForge and Phil Jensen in their pre-season preparations as well as helping many students garner physical strength; a worthy purpose.

CLASS OF 1976

One might think that being moved from school to school would damage the cohesiveness of a class, never mind rob them of valuable time in which to raise money for their junior and senior years. This was not the case with the sophomore class. Not only did they survive the move, they managed to make up for lost time and have a very successful year. To boost their stature financially, the class held a concert with "Punk" as the featured band and a bake sale.

Unlike past classes where student apathy was a problem, class president Marc Most remarked that the majority of his class did co-operate in class plans, and the class was able to put on more money making activities this year. Working with Marc this year were Paula Hardina, vice-president; Patty Lidell, secretary; Caroline Walsh, treasurer; and class advisor Mr. Wayne Morse.

This class' graduation will coincide with the 200th anniversary of the founding of the United States — perhaps the spirit exhibited by the class of "76" is symbolic of the future. Notwithstanding, this class should have a good two years ahead.

Juniors

This year's junior class will be the last class to be graduated from AHS that attended the full four years, that bore the stigma of being "frosh" with all its traditional meaning. In this they are unique, the last of a breed. Ah, for good old, bad old days.

The juniors received their rings early in the year, having done so they became upperclassmen, that long awaited rise in status. Having taken this assuredly momentus step, the Junior class officers, Rick Mastroianni, president; Ann Osolinski, vice president; Kathy Ayre, secretary; and Jane Brodeur, treasurer started planning for their junior prom, entitled, "We May Never Pass This Way Again," a dinner-dance held at Chez Josef. The class officers had tentatively planned a bake sale and a movie to help finance their prom.

Looking forward to their senior year, the juniors still have a way to go before they can see the proverb al "light at the end of the tunnel". With their class advisor, Mr. Richard Joseph, and more money t work with, the juniors should have a memorable senior year.

1 Senior "keeper of the flame" Colleen Blakesley kept the AHS cheering squad "up" in the world.
2 Senior April Hill managed to keep in voice "through rain and sleet and bitter hail" — and lengthy football games.
3 Senior Chris Ekstedt helped keep the dwindling flame of AHS spirit burning during the '74 season.
4 The thrill of defeat — a loss at the tug-of-war meant a sure victory over Westside.
5 Spirited Sheryl Hadden kept attention rooted to the playing field, even when the game went bad.

FOOTBALL

The Agawam High Brownies experienced a disappointing 4-5 record in the '73 season. But this record does not portray the spectacular performances of outstanding individuals, nor does it show how many Brownie games could just as easily have been victories as losses. Agawam's powerful offensive contained seniors Dave Mason, and Mark Sterling, and was spearheaded by senior workhorse Shawn Sullivan, captain.

Game highlights this year were; a 14-12 win over West Side, our eleventh consecutive win over our rivals, a 30-0 win over Tech, a close 6-0 lose to conference champs Chicopee Comp., as well as a 14-12 heartbreaker to Chicopee.

Giving excellent offensive blocking were Dan Borkosky, Chuck Doucette, John Martino and Pete Longhi. The defense was keyed by linebacker Jeff Locke, defensive backs Cliff Kibbe, Dave Michalak, Bill Stone and Mark DeForge. Leading the charge of defense were hard working seniors John Bonavita, Scott Barker and Joe Ramah.

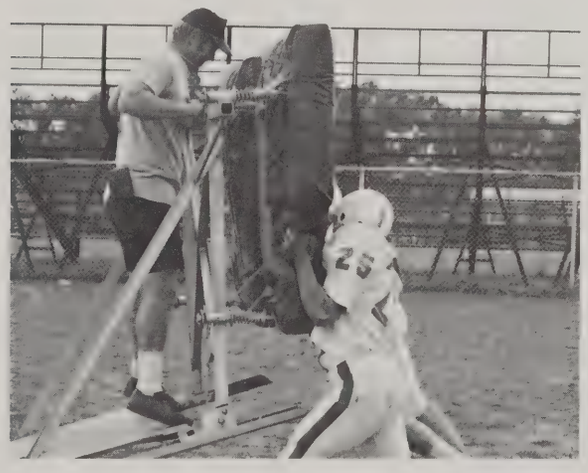

Aside from five losses this year, Agawan football will experience a greater loss in the retirement of Coach Cliff Kibbe. His hard work, devotion, and dedication will be sorely missed at Agawam, but never forgotten.

GIRLS' TENNIS

The Girls' Tennis team finished an outstanding season with a record of 9-3-0, all three losses going to Longmeadow. The girls definitely showed their strength in the Western Mass. Division Tournaments with the team of Patti Liddell and Kathy Ayre placing first in doubles, third place in doubles going to Lisa Trimboli and Debbie Brignoli, and Marcia Atwater competing in singles.

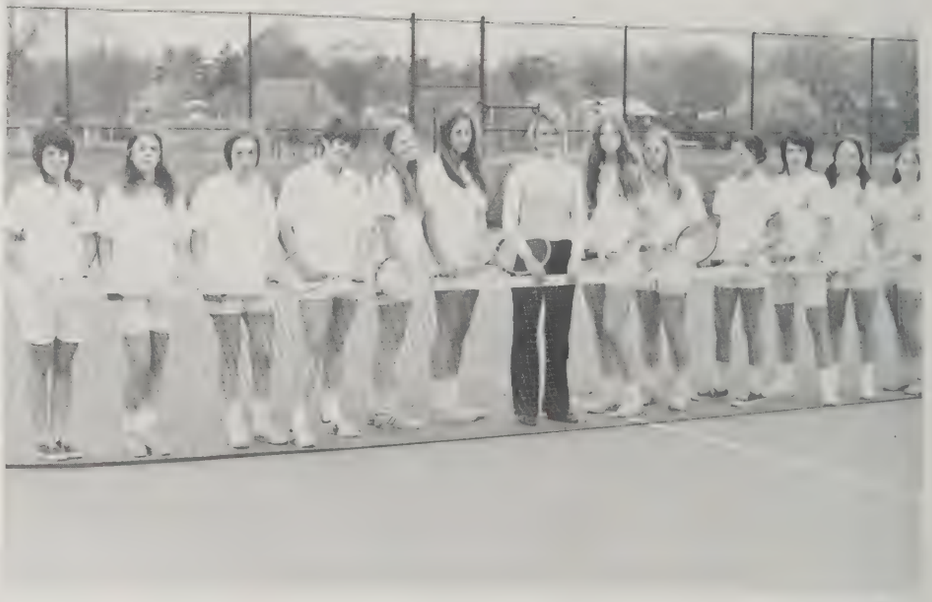

Coach Holly Ryall expects another good year, as returning members Sue Wheeler, Lisa Trimboli, Colleen Blakesley, Holly and Connie Kinnell, Sue Carey, and Marcia Atwater have had one good year of experience behind them.

BOYS' TENNIS

The 1973 Boy's Tennis Team finished a hard fought season with a 7-9-0 record. Coach Wayne Morse is hopeful for the coming season which should prove to be stronger.

Rick Stefanik and Tom Tatro, the team's powerful duo placed second in the Western Mass. Doubles Tournament. As a first year member of the team, senior Bob Bouley played noticeable well in singles competition.

Volleying seniors for the net team are Ed Adamchek, Mario Albano, Ron Ashton, and Matt Siano. Promising underclassmen include Steve Houlihan, Pete McLaughlain, and Bill Spear. Marie Dufault and Joan Noonan supply oranges and scores for the team as managers.

SOCCER

The Soccer Team played to a 2-15-1 record, both victories being over Westfield. Sparked by the outstanding play of All-Western Mass. fullback and co-captain, Mike Bodurtha, the youthful and inexperienced team steadily improved throughout the season. The main asset for Agawam was it's defense which consisted of Bodurtha, goalie Gary Brown, senior co-captain Mike Walsh, and junior Greg Fuchs. The halfback line was lead by junior Mark Davilli and was highlighted by seniors Jim Bouley, Joe Gazillo and Doug Heckman. Coach Walter Willard felt the greatest improvement was shown in the forward line, which included underclassmen Tom Dalmolin, two year veteran Jeff McCarl, Kevin Cook, Steve Houlihan and Wayne Mallory.

Agawam beat Westfield 2-1 in the team's first win, with co-captain Bodurtha getting the first goal and Tom Dalmolin getting the winner. At their next meeting, Agawam trounced Westfield 4-0. In the last game of the season, the Brownies surprised a strong Minnechaug team and played to a 1-1 tie.

Coach Willard felt Agawam's reason for a poor record was mostly inexperience, with only five returning lettermen from last year. But with twelve men returning and a promising freshman team coming up, Agawam's soccer outlook for next year are very bright.

BOYS' SWIM TEAM

The 1973-74 Swim Team has developed tremendously from years of hard work. The abilities of Coach Dave Smith and Assistant Coach Dave McCloud have given the team much hope for the future. Led by Seniors Larry Dowd, Jim Botelho, and Scott Burgess, the talented underclassmen Mike Lockwood, Eric Brown, Frank Ball, Bob Gardner, Dave Theodorowicz, and Bill Gamelli should go flipping by next season.

GIRLS' SWIM TEAM

For the first time in Agawam High history, a Girl's Swim Team joined the ranks of AHS sports. Although the girls were not able to produce a winning squad, much knowledge and experience of the sport was attained through constant practice and devotion.

Agawam managed to excel in the 400 yard freestyle relay, in spite of the small number of girls on the team. Agawam took this event in almost every meet, with the efforts of Kim Comstock, Kathy Griffen, Michelle Bussiere and Leslie Clark.

TRACK

The Agawam High Track Team compiled a dismal 4-6 record this past season. Agawam's strength lay in the weight events; they were considerably weaker in the running events which were run predominantly by underclassmen, though seniors Dave Mason, Joe Ramah, and Hal Stuart proved themselves by giving some excellent performances. Underclassmen Kevin Coughlin, Phil Jenson, and Matt Mason appear to hold potential for the future, and with the helpful coaching of Coaches Modzelewski and Smith the inexperienced team is expected to grow into a powerhouse.

CROSS COUNTRY

The '73 season was discouraging to Coach Haggerty's harriers. This years runners compiled a 2-7 record. The season's start was a promising one, but after the loss of key senior runners Hal Stuart and Rick Sardella, the team was bitterly disappointed.

The burden was then put in the inexperienced hands of Tom Bassett, Kevin Coughlin and Phil Losito.

With the experience gained this year, the underclassmen are expected to aspire to a successful '74 season.

GOLF

This individualistic sport in '73 proved to be a frustrating one as well; the '73 golfing season was an unsuccessful one. Coach Roger Leclerc had high hopes for the team, but was disappointed with a 6-7 record. The team made an above par showing when they drove past the favored Classical for the win, and from then on Agawam remained tough competition.

Heading up next years team will be returners Dan Lunden and Dave D'Amours.

1973 proved to be a good year for the improving Girl's softball team. Coached by Mrs. Ruth Nichols, the team wrapped up the season with a satisfying 8-4 record. In spite of it's losses, Agawam did qualify for the Western Mass. tournament.

Brightening up the prospects for the 1974 season are returning seniors Patti Cook, April Hill, Joann Blair, Sheryl Hadden and Donna Bailey. Juniors returning are Jane Benerakis, Rhonda LaVallee and Regina Dalmolin who, along with sophomores Linda Viens and Celeste Gallucci, should prove unexpendable in the coming season.

FIELD HOCKEY

The Agawam Field Hockey Team has had another unforgettable year. Although they amassed a winless record, the team seemed to exemplify the true meaning of sportsmanship, and looked on to 1975 as a bigger and better year.

Seniors on this year's team included Paula Christopher, Linda Oliver, Sue Amabile, and Joanne Morawski as defensive players, and Joanne Draghetti on offense. Heading up the team pointwise was junior Laurie O'Connor, and all the underclassmen are sure to carry on this year's attitude of stubbornness and energy to next.

BASEBALL

The 1973 Agawam High Baseball team successfully defended their Valley Wheel title. Coach Gerald Smith proudly saw the "73" team win Agawam's third Valley Wheel championship in four years. Supported by the pitching of iron-man David Rossi and All Valley Wheel pitcher Tom Quinn, Agawam compiled a 15-4 record, the best in school history. Graduating senior — All Western Mass., Walt Ugolick, along with Scott Barker, and Shawn Sullivan provided the hitting strength that was needed during the season.

Bob Black, Jim Laurino, Dave Michalak, Bill Stone and Doug Miller also made fine performances.

Expected to come into their own this year are seniors Art Bogue, Ted Kopyscinski, and Mike Rossi.

With eleven returning men the Brownies are expected to take the Valley Wheel again. But their chances were considerably weakened with the tragic death of pitching star, David Rossi. With David's death the team lost a steadily winning pitcher, the team comedian, and a great inspiration. The Brownies still have a strong offense, and they remain eager and hopeful to defend their title.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The 1974 Girl's Basketball Team exhibited a great deal of enthusiasm and promise during their past season. The team worked hard under first year coach, Miss Mary Wolochowicz.

The highlight of this season was the girl's 27-26 win over West Side. This game had special significance because earlier in the same week the girls had lost in overtime to the Terriers.

The Varsity squad was lead by high-scoring senior captain Brenda Devine. The rest of the squad are mostly underclassmen; Judy Bozak, Marie Dufault, Leslie Clark, Lori Clark, Celeste Galluci, Peggy Johnson, and Robin Saliba. Next year's team promises to combine both experience and a capacity for consistent wins to ensure a successful season.

BASKETBALL

The Agawam Cagers, eyes on the Valley Wheel Championship, started off at a slow pace. But as the season progressed, so did the Brownies.

The highlight for this season was Agawam's most important game, a wild 59-52 win over Division II leader, South Hadley. In the first half Steve Byrne, Tom Quinn and Dan Lunden were hot in their shooting and Agawam went in the locker room leading by three. In the second half the lead went back and forth until late in the fourth quarter when the Cagers gradually pulled away.

Leading this year's team was Captain Steve Byrne, who may be one of the best basketball players Agawam has produced. Along with junior Tom Quinn, Agawam had the best one-two punch in western Mass. The rest of the starting five was high scoring Dan Lunden, Cliff Kibbe, and Dave Michalak.

Coach Kibbe was able to call on many reliable back-up men when the going got tough. Most of the boys saw a lot of action this past year; such as seniors Marc Manna and Bill Stone, and juniors Tom Bassett, Jeff Carmody, John Conte, Greg Fuchs, and Doug Miller.

WRESTLING TEAM

The Wrestling Team, under the coaching of Mr. Gus Young progressed greatly this year. The long hours of practice proved vital to plan and prepare their strategy. There were many energetic members of the group scattered in the different categories.

The three classes of the Wrestling Team were; heavyweight, middleweight, and lightweight. The matches proved exciting as the team executed their moves against the opposition. The team can be commended for their outstanding efforts on the mats. Much appreciation goes to the young coaching staff for their time and effort in helping the Wrestling team "get off the ground!"

BOYS' SKI TEAM

A ski team's season is as good as the conditions that exist on the slopes. A little luck is needed where the snow is concerned, but as for the AHS skiers, their experience served as their base. Led by senior Captain Jim Marcus, the team members were Mark Bierschied, Dave Carey, Tom Cirillo, Chuck Dwyer, Steve Houlihan, Greg Meister, Chris Meister, Tom Stapleton, and Stan Subotin. Marcus believes that "Skiing is an individualized sport," while senior skier Meister added, "I dig the competition."

Both the boy's and girl's teams and their coaches Mr. Richard Joseph and Miss Freda Florek felt that the '73-'74 season was a relative success, and returning underclassmen are looking forward to their next year of competition.

HOCKEY

The '73-'74 Hockey Team has found its third season in the Berry division very disappointing. With a poor start of 2-5 Coaches Russ Ramah and Art Gage have found it hard to find a winning nucleus for a team with only five returning lettermen. Agawam's most successful line was senior Pete Longhi, junior Randy Economidy, sophomore Brian Keeley backed up by solid defensemen Scott Brown, Tom Dalmolin, and three year starter John Martino. Seniors Steve Gould and Jeff Nolin scored regularly for the Brownies and Captain Gary Brown put in a standout performance in goal, handling up to forty shots in a game.

Agawam's two wins were against Lenox and Tech. The skaters beat Tech 3-2 and exploded for eleven goals against Lenox with Randy Economidy getting a hat trick.

In memory of David Rossi . . .
Senior '74

The time you won your town the race
We chaired you through the market place;
Man and boy stood cheering by,
And home we brought you shoulder-high.

Today, the road all runners come,
Shoulder-high we bring you home,
And set you at your threshold down,
Townsman of a stiller town.

Smart lad, to slip betimes away
From fields where glory does not stay
And early though the laurel grows
It withers quicker than the rose.

Eyes the shody night has shut
Cannot see the record cut,
And silence sounds no worse than cheers
After earth has stopped the ears:

Now you will not swell the rout
Of lads that wore their honors out,
Runners whom renown outran
And the name died before the man.

By A. E. Housman

He sees to those who seek their chances to break physical limits. To be a coach was to give something of which he had known. Now he stood back . . .

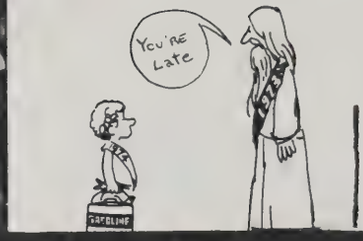

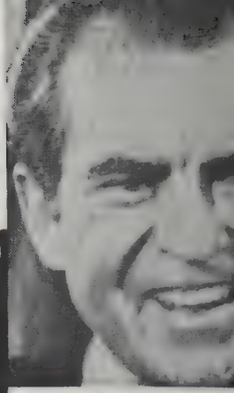

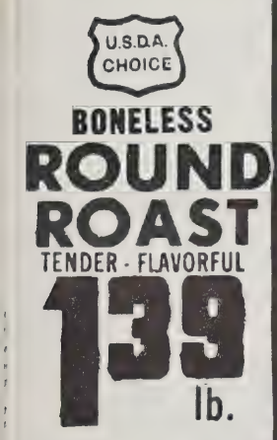

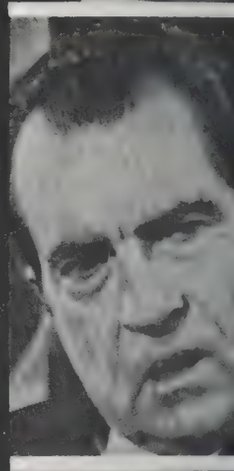

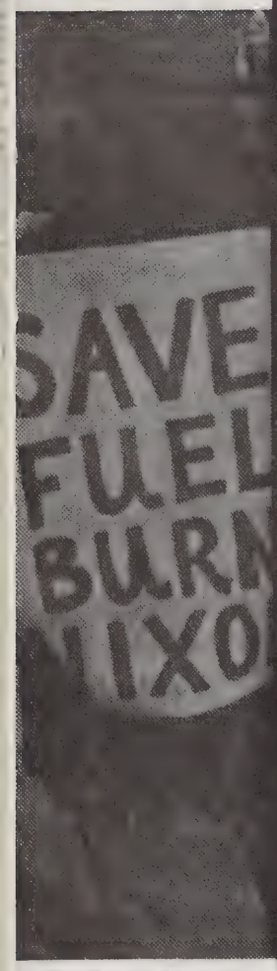

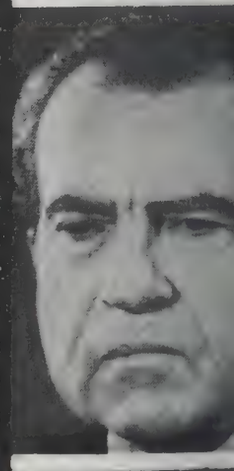

PART ONE —

1971 — a year, like many others, of dissent and discord, of trial and tribulation, of Nixon and nonsense. Yet, one might say 1971 was a very good year. For buried deep under the happenings of the Vietnam war, cries for peace, and problems of racial imbalance, a spec of humanity took root in foreign soil. Alike yet unique, independent of most preceding trends, the class of 1974 began it's academic career at Agawam High School.

Freshman year, as one might expect, proved to be one of challenge and orientation. Confused by new faces, an unlimited an unknown maze of doorways and passages, and "uppity" upperclassmen, the freshman class barely managed to keep it's head above water. Conventionally, the class first blackened the pages of it's barren account book with bake sale profits. Stepping boldly forth into the institution of school politics, the fettered fledglings of '74 elected Nancy Prystupa, Walter Kane, Denise Pepper and Liz Norman for class officers. Rallies were as vague as ever to those whose previous assemblies consisted of fund raising drives and honor roll reading and they remained unexperienced privileges until —

PART TWO —

1972 — a year, like many others, of descent in the value of the dollar and discord, of trial and tribulation, of Nixon and nonsense. Yet, one might say 1972 was a very good year. For that minute portion of humanity slowly took shape and started to realize it's potential for the years ahead.

The second year of higher-level learning contained the beginnings of school enthusiasm brought on, in part, by the long awaited combination of drum-beat, competition and cheerleader decor — the rally. The class of '74, being shy and reserved, absorbed and stored information on the proper behavior of juniors and seniors at such gatherings for future reference. It gathered that juniors dislike sophomores and seniors, seniors dislike juniors and sophomores, and everybody dislikes the other team.

A great blow to the pride of the upperclassmen came when the sophomore class ran away with the number-one title in the Winter Olympics, and an even greater blow was served to male chauvinism when four girls — April Hill, Laura Kibbe, Denise Pepper and Liz Norman were elected to class positions. Also making the year much more enjoyable was a Agawam's ninth successive football victory over West Side, to be made the tenth ~~in~~

PART THREE —

1973 — a year, like many others, of dissent and discord, of Watergate trials and tribulations, of Nixon and nonsense. Yet, one might say 1973 was a very good year. For that spec moved up in the ranks of "earth-shaking" events, became more visible to the naked eye, became known as the junior class.

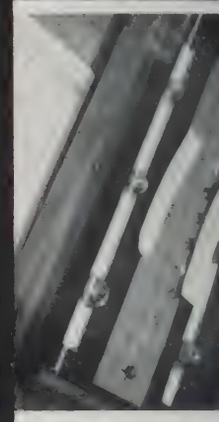

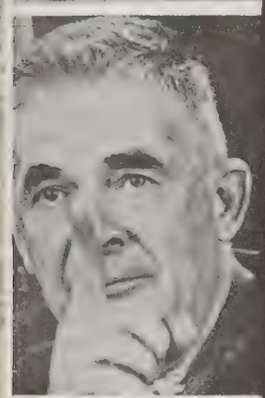

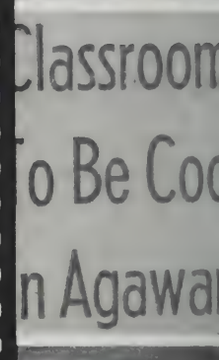

The class of '74 found that the junior year was the next best thing to the senior year, as the only special privileges rewarded to seniors were Max-Ed and automatic victories at class competitions. The junior class came up with something distinctively new in the annuals of AHS history — a combination prom-dinner-dance. With the theme, "Three Roses", the senior prom was held at classy Chez-Josef, for those who could afford class. Also new was the "changing of the guard" (class officers) to Sue Wheeler, Pam Dubour, Denise Pepper and Liz Norman. The class of '74, at last, has something to be proud of — class rings, a junior win over the faculty at basketball; advisor Mr. Sheehan, and a victory over time. Three years had painstakingly gone by, leaving one year left to graduation in —

PART FOUR —

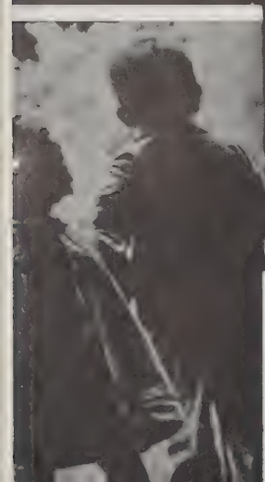

1974 — a year of dissent and discord, of trial and tribulation, and of more of Nixon's nonsense than was bearable. Yet, one must say it was a very good year. For that spec reached the end of the line, became ready to move on to greener pastures.

Many new innovations characterized the newly-made seniors, the most striking being the ascendency of three males to the ranks of class officers. Hal Stuart, Ric Sardella and Doug Heckman broke the long-running tradition of a predominately female-ruled class, and proved that they could do a much better job than their predecessors. Liz Norman remained in her four-year position as class secretary. Open Campus was converted to the Max-Ed program, which allowed for the same priveleges but required an accounting for some of the Senior's time. New to the school was the school store which carried everything from cough drops to Bic Bananas. Co-ed gym for Seniors made those two periods a week just a little more enjoyable. Agawam abounded in short-term football players, as the senior shirts chosen in '74 were look-alikes to the standard team shirt (in orange and white).

Tradition still held a place in the events of the senior class. The Kid Party was the one good opportunity for seniors to drop their screens of "maturity" and misbehave for a night. Steve Bailey, Joy Fournier and Patti Haynes starred in the annual operetta, chosen as "Camelot" by the music department. And last, but not least, the age long feud between the juniors and the seniors was carried on in style when seniors insisted on lending the sophomores a helping hand during class competitions at the West Side Rally.

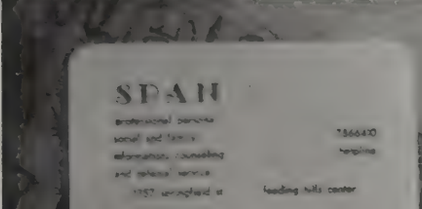

It's absolutely necessary to look beyond the competitive, seemingly "snobbish" senior, and to realize he's just biding his time. For the goal of every red-blooded American high school student is to sit calmly through unending strains of "Pomp and Circumstance", to serenely let the wisdom of the aged flow through one ear and out the other, to quietly accept the diploma with a secret smile of success, and finally to run hysterically out of the building to a night on the town. Yes, Class of '74, enjoy yourself. For "you deserve a break today." You've earned it!

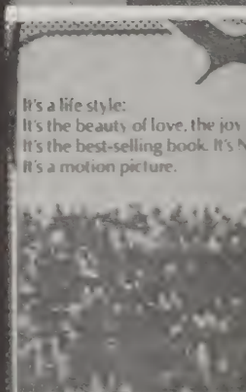

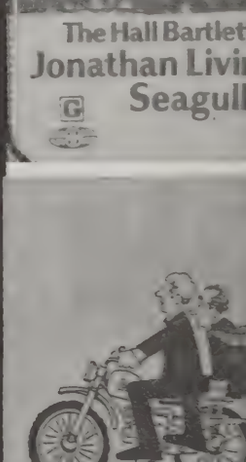

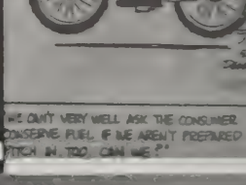

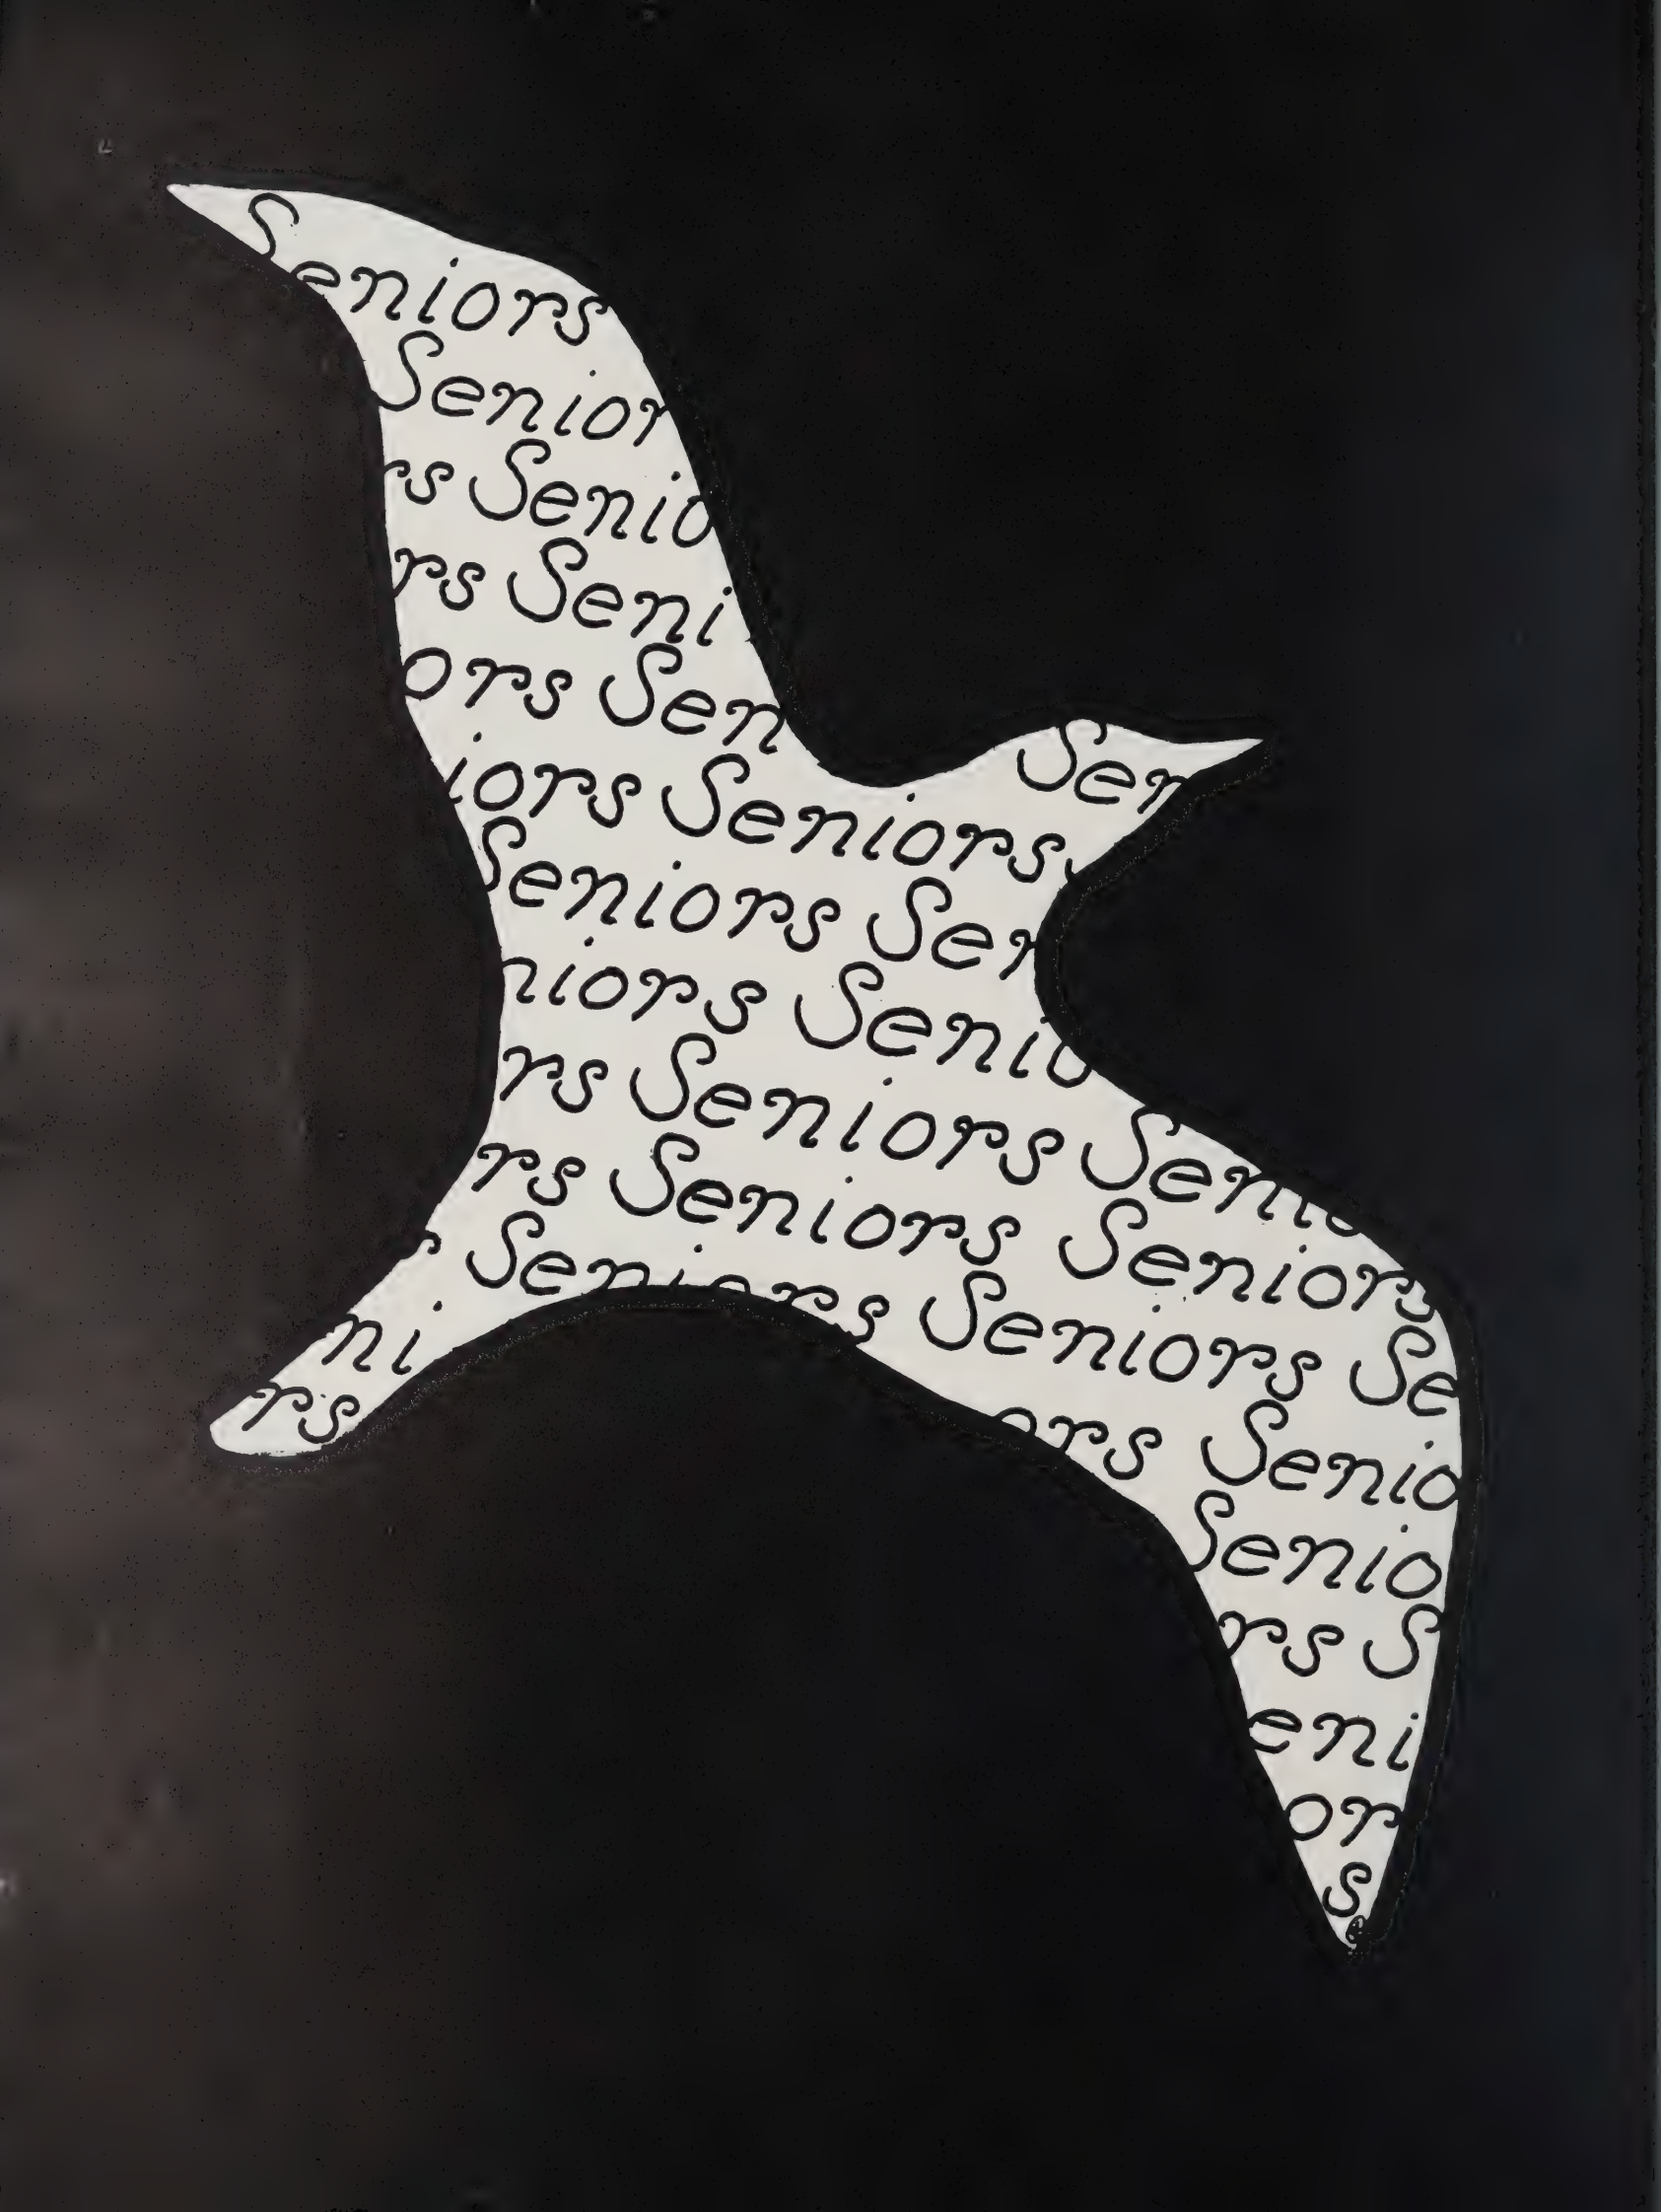

Seniors

CLASS OFFICERS

The senior class officers, fighting phenominal odds, made the senior year of the class of '74 an unexpected success. A few of their thoughts on the past year and their respective office would be most appropriate. Doug Heckman described his position of class treasurer as "a new experience . . . I liked it", while class secretary Liz Norman pointed out, "it was really hectic, definitely the busiest of the four years . . . I loved it though." Vice-president Rick Sardella observed that "With the help of the seniors individually (a great bunch of kids) and our president we made it a good year . . . the best class to ever graduate from AHS." "Our president", Hal Stuart, stated that though the year had had "a bleak beginning highlighted by chaotic, sometimes exasperating events", and he had felt "a lot of apprehension" at first, the class came through much better than he had anticipated. Sincere thanks and gratitude are due these four seniors for their efforts.

"I don't like people talking about me as a tennis player. I'm a person," insists Ron Ashton, overly tall athlete and human being. Ron seems to be a very versatile individual, as shown by his many and varied accomplishments.

As a member of the tennis team for the past three years, Ron recalls how he got into the game — "The reason I started playing tennis was out of sheer embarrasment." It seems that Ron was beaten badly the first time out on the courts, and since then, he made up his mind to "look like I know what I'm doing."

Ron is also an avid artist, a talented one at that. He's won first prizes in school art competitions, and had the honor of designing the Food Mart window for the holiday season. One might think that, with so much ability, he would spend his time locked up in a studio somewhere. But no. "I string tennis rackets. It's exciting." he states.

Apparently into not only his own art but the work of others, Ron likes, "talking about Norman Rockwell, Leonardo DaVinci, Michaelangelo, people like that." He also enjoys playing ice hockey without skates, and looking through reference books "just for fun," which tells a lot about the person Ron really is.

Steve Bailey is perhaps one of the most interesting persons that anyone would want to meet. He spends most of his time with music and loves all kinds. The people that he associates the most with in reference to music are Arthur Fiedler, Mr. Davis, Dave Neil, and Patti Haynes. His best memory of music in the high school was the band trip to Philadelphia.

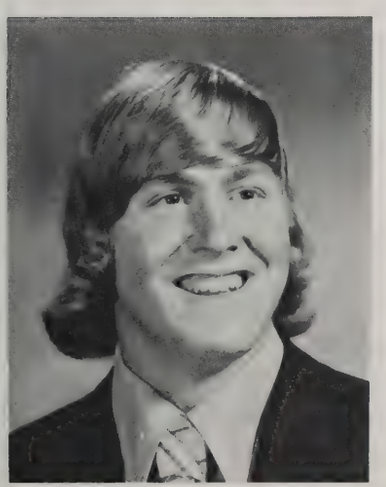

"That was pretty memorable, especially the bus trip!"

"I go into the band room and play the William Tell Overture on my baritone then come out singing "Sha-boom." As you can see Steve is pretty comical. He makes just about everything that ever was into a joke. And many times that helps people who need cheering up. His reply to what makes him laugh in a game of Poor Pussy was;

"The Russian Revolution, that's what makes me laugh!"

Question — Who plays ping-pong and basketball without a ball, idolizes hockey pucks, and stares at ceilings? This description describes one and only one person — Virginia Broz, editor of the school newspaper.

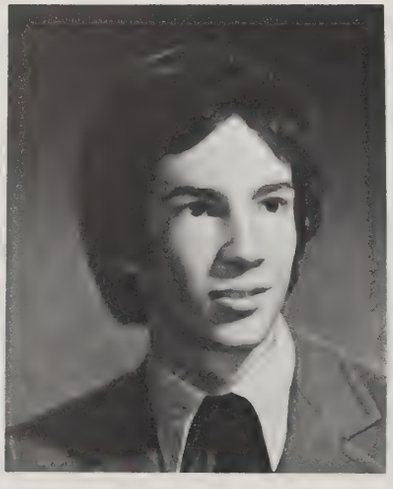

"I'm crazy, I'm insane," states Ginny, who attempts to justify this statement by adding that, " . . . my mother always told me to be different." To the world, Ginny seems to be one of the unfortunates with an over-abundance of imagination, but it must come in handy when the Mirror gets stuck for copy. Ginny takes pleasure in watching the ceiling intently, just to test the reactions of people around her. She'll be found jitterbugging in pizza parlors, and even doing a few average things like bowling and going to hockey games.

"It was a dark and stormy night," begins probably the most intense and true to life account of "The Religion of a Hockey Puck", copyright 1971 by Virginia Broz. Since there is no precedent to judge it by, her book must remain unjudged. Ginny is very enthusiastic about the music of Joe Cocker, who she claims is "the reincarnation of Beethoven." Who knows? Anything is possible with a little imagination, and Ginny has enough to last a lifetime.

"I think there's alot more to life than what most people see on the surface. It's like a tootsie pop, the deeper you get the better it is. You can't look back to what you have already done, you have to look enthusiastically forward into the future."

Lynn Dahlke is a tall, pretty, and very talented girl. She has the warmest smile and a friendly, warm personality. Although she sometimes likes to be alone, what makes her happiest is being with her friends. Lynn's specialty is dancing — jazz, tap, and toe, and one of her most favorite things to do is to make up dances of her own.

"My mother always wanted me to take dancing," she says. "When I was five, she talked to my father about it and then she put me into it. I've been in that same school for twelve years. She didn't think I'd last that long!"

Lynn has danced before audiences "quite a lot" and an example of this is when she danced in the AHS play two years ago. "That was pretty cool," she said. She also remarked that before going on stage she has a "fear of screwing something up."

In the future, Lynn wants to go into dancing either professionally or by having a studio of her own. "I pretty much live for today," she says, "I plan for the future, though." And it looks like Lynn Dahlke has a very promising future ahead of her.

Hernan Ulloa, a student from South America, is perhaps one of the most interesting individuals AHS has ever known. In South America, Hernan enjoyed soccer and was on a varsity track team for two years. At ten years of age, he came to America, learned the English language and, while still interested in soccer and track, his interests grew in other areas as well. Hernan enjoys chess as a favorite pastime, along with an increased number of sports such as basketball and baseball, and has recently won a national literary award.

Upon graduating from Agawam High, Hernan hopes to go to Harvard and major in psychiatry. Hernan feels that it is important for people to participate in various activities, to be sincere in what they are doing, and most important to be themselves. In answer to his own advice, he states, "I meet different personalities and I try to know them without changing my own."

Joe Gazillo is to the word "individual" as Rodgers is to Hammerstein, one naturally calls to mind the other. Joe feels that tolerance of people and ideas is the quality in himself which could be considered most admirable. He believes that "all people are equal".

Joe's only point of contention with school is "not being trusted", not being thought of as mature enough to handle his own affairs. He also perceives that people act "plastic" in school as he has found most people to be different away from school. Of his four years at AHS Joe says he has gotten the most out of Mr. Zabielski's classes — "he makes you think". When not in school Joe is partial to pondering, he believes in some parts of Gestalt Therapy — "In the soul there is a conflict between what you should do and what you want to do . . . the shoulds have to balance the wants".

Joe skis during the winter, plays soccer, and idealizes Vermont in whatever spare time he has left — "I like the country and the people I've met there". He is a self-taught guitarist, playing for his own amusement, and follows both politics and environmental news enthusiastically. Joe is an amateur thespian, as he has acted at Stage West's Children's Theatre, and also served as the assistant director for Camelot. "I'm into music", says he, "except for the top 40". Joe feels that "it's important to be involved", exemplified in his tentative goal, "to be a shrink". Joe, red-haired, "you do your thing I'll do mine", honest, Senior, '74.

"Pencils have a lot to do with me." says Mary Gentile, and who should know better than she? Mary says that she "cracks under pressure" like a pencil, has two edges like a pencil, and prefers the pencil to any other writing utensil. It is no wonder that the last thing she is going to do before leaving AHS is "sharpen my pencil". When Mary is not sharpening her pencils she is an avid TV watcher, "I get my material from TV" and spends much of her free time engrossed in the rectangular box. Armed with a sarcastic sense of humor, her pencils and her competitive nature, Mary achieved a number two rank in the class. Asked how it feels to be number two, Mary quipped, "You try harder". To Mary "people look like animals", needless to say she has a vivid imagination. Mary also has a number of pet dislikes; little noises, bright light, crowds, and sees herself as an ambitious person, "anything worth doing is worth doing well". One has to be ambitious to memorize a word a day from the dictionary in order to facilitate better verbal scores. Mary truly enjoyed Sing Out this year. Who could forget her performance as an AHS cheerleader? Mary, intelligent, precise, heavy on sarcasm and "I'talian, cause that's the way they say it", Senior '74.

Deena Grant is a "stuffed duck," a Leo, and a very worthwhile person to know. The person with whom she identifies most is Jane Van Lawick Goodall, famous for her discovery of an albino chimpanzee. "I admire her work, her ability to study animals and understand them ... humans forget they're animals too." Deena is a whole-hearted naturalist, and someday she would "love to work in Africa or a wildlife sanctuary." Ah yes, the young woman is determined, saying "Anything I set out to do, I do ... I set few goals for myself though."

"Art is the sounding board for my emotions"; Deena feels that art is "so much a part of me" that she would rather not capitalize on it, but instead "take my life and use it for art," as an afterthought, "I don't confine myself to one particular branch of art ... if an artist does he is not good." Ultimately Deena hopes to combine her two interests into perhaps illustrating books with her drawings of various fauna.

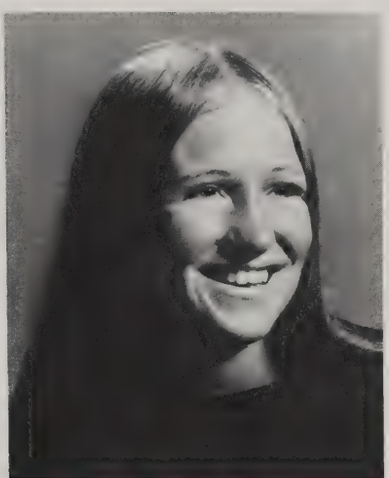

To know Deena is to know a born actress, "I love to act ... it transforms you ... you become a surrealistic person in a surrealistic world ... especially morbid characters."

Living for "those few moments of light in life," Deena is one of those people who is "a Leo to a T" as she puts it, those who know her will attest to that! Deena, dramatic, sensitive, artistic, Senior, '74.

How can you describe someone who describes herself in the words "I'm more everything else than myself?" Who further states, "I absorb everything ... my moods change with the seasons especially with fall." Tina's philosophy of life is to "take it as it comes", to basically live for each day and get involved in the "thing of the moment". If she could be anywhere and be doing anything she wished, her ideal situation would be "lying under a shady tree in a sleeping bag, reading", and anyone who knows Tina knows what she would be reading — science fiction. To Tina, science fiction is "a vent for my imagination ... a projection of what you would like to be", she enjoys fantasy and calls her particular way of being as "escaping practicality". Tina sees herself as a shy person, but is no introvert, her future is tied up with people since she wants "to get around ... and meet people", and her way of getting through school with her sanity was having it "made bearable by people". Tina says that "wherever I am is fine" and knowing her one can be sure that wherever that place is in the future, the people there will be genuinely fortunate to have her around. Ambitious Liz Norman says she hopes to be a fashion buyer someday. She's been secretary for the class of '74 for four years.

Liz enjoys spending a great deal of her spare time seeing the sights with friends riding around in her Grand Prix.

Liz's most memorable activity while at Agawam is definitely color guard.

"I really got a great deal of satisfaction marching with the color guard. It meant a lot to me to see everyone working so hard to give a good performance."

Liz also was involved in the class skits, the decoration committees for Westside rallys and just about every other activity in the class.

"Be your own person. Go after anything you want and live life to the fullest!"

Elaine Gregory said that, "My year as vice president of the Band helped me to put to use something that I learned in Girl's State — life is a big swimming pool, jump in and get wet", but the real question is, why would a person who is number one in her class want to be a "Zambini driver?" Why, for the same reason she talks to trees of course! Elaine is different, that's why — a squirrel for that matter. To explain, a Zambini driver is one who drives an ice refinishing machine at the Coliseum, talking to trees came about when "Ellen introduced me to it . . . they whisper", and a squirrel because "everyone says I look like one since I cut my hair".

And what does Elaine do in her spare time? "I Cheryl", says she. Seriously though, Elaine likes to sew, do needle point, hook rugs, square dance at the Mormon Church, and bowl, besides watch hockey games. Elaine also likes music; playing the flute and "listening to music with the lights out". Elaine really enjoyed Sing Out because "I got to be a super greaser", and because it probably was something that people didn't expect her to do.

Elaine's favorite place is Cape Cod, and there she likes to "play tag with the waves" on secluded beaches. For the future Elaine would like to find a rich husband, then buy a house in England. She would redecorate the house herself, and have an orange Datsun to go with it, of course. Last but not least, Elaine has a favorite thing to do — "listening to ping-pong balls drop on the table." Elaine, humorous, intelligent, active, Senior, '74.

Upon meeting Linda Griggs for the first time, one would think she was either a Shirley Temple stereotype or a genuine Northampton escapee. She laughingly believes her most prominent characteristic is her "body", but feels that her friends like her because she understands them. "They come to me with their problems and I listen." Ideally, she thinks that the most important attitude found in a person is the ability to listen and to understand.

Linda prefers to spend her time with any one of the favorite people, especially her boyfriend, Bobby. Her words of wisdom concerning love are that "its important to like someone as well as to love him." After her graduation, Linda hopes to go to college, "but I'd rather spend my life with Bobby."

In short, Linda, with her light personality and all her solid beliefs on life, should prove to have as interesting a life after graduation as she does now. After all; with the nickname "Grease", who could go wrong?

"Living and achieving satisfaction in whatever I do are definitely my favorite pastimes."

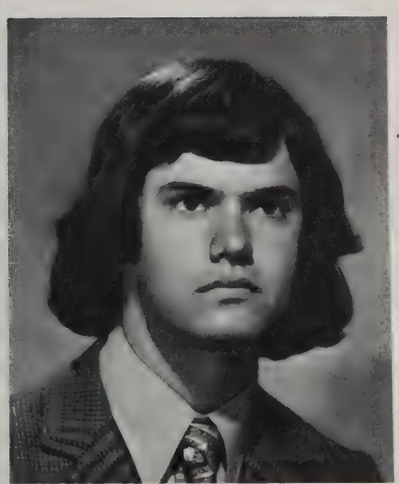

Lisa Karen is an active, dedicated and a very persistent student. As editor of 1974 Sachem, Lisa felt the staff really produced one of the best yearbooks of AHS.

"The dominant activity of my four years was certainly being editor of the yearbook. The yearbook afforded me a sense of accomplishment and pride in achievement. The yearbook has given me a broader understanding of people. It also gave me a chance to put in print a part of Agawam High School and a part of myself."

Lisa hopes to attend college and pursue a M.D. degree and of course attain success in everything she tackles.

"I feel that being able to give and receive in return is one of the greatest pleasures life can afford." Mature, intelligent Lisa Karen — senior 1974.

"I think of myself as modest, beautiful, intelligent . . . " that quotation is a good example of the irrepressible good humor of Tony Mowrer. He sees himself as none of the above, but he reflects them all in his sincere manner. Tony is a confident person, unwavering in his ideals and he feels "I know my own capabilities, and what I can't do. I stay within my boundaries."

Tony directs himself for tomorrow and has set plans for himself which he feels must be started today. "My whole life is geared for the future. I do everything for the future. Everything I do today is for tommorrow." One of his future plans is to become a physics teacher in a private school, not a public one because "the relationships can be closer with fewer kids."

Tony has tried his hand at both golf and tennis. When describing his feelings on golf he said, "Well, I go out on a golf course, it's quiet and it gives a person time to think."

One could not speak of Tony without mentioning his musical talents. He was an active member of the chorale, Madrigals, and frequently participates in the annual Sing Outs and Operettas. Tony is a good actor but he restricts his acting to the stage only. He is a truly warm person.

"Everything I believe in is based on my religion," states senior Valli Nichols, a confirmed Morman and an interesting person as well. Everything about her seems to hint at her dedication and loyalty to her faith, and in this day and age, when people change to fit the moment, that's something quite unique.

Valli is also very startling in her ambition to "have about twelve kids." Says she, "I like kids, and no population explosion is going to stop me," a view very acceptable in the eyes of the Mormon Church. The Mormon belief is that as long as parents really want children, support and health will follow.

Dancing is an important part of Valli's life, something taught at MIA, her Mormon youth group, and she hopes to follow it up in her future college career. In her spare time, Valli enjoys combination mystery-adventure-romance novels, and unlike many teenage girls, hates talking on the telephone.

Shy, reserved Debbie Nostin fulfilled her senior year by being a member of colorguard and a member of the layout staff for Sachem 1974.

"My senior year was fantastic. I had so much fun, but I really worked hard! Colorguard was really exciting. I've been on colorguard for two years and it was well worth it. Being on the yearbook staff was an experience. Fantastic, of course."

Debbie hopes to go into some sort of secretarial program. Through high school, she worked as a secretary for various people.

Deb enjoys attending all sport activities. Her favorites are football and basketball. Frequently she attended the games with chocolate ice cream cones in one hand and pecans in the other.

"Really live life. Seek out your ambitions and conquer them." Quiet, personable, Debbie Nostin — senior 1974.

Val Janulewicz describes herself as being like a Christmas tree, "bright and glowy". A more fitting comparison can't be found, for Val is a people-lover, sincerely friendly towards everyone she meets. "Meeting a lot of people with an open mind and just listening to their opinions", just "rapping with people" is one of her favorite pastimes. Val feels that more people should try listening to each other — "you shouldn't make snap judgements". One of her pet peeves is people who are insincere and break confidences.

When Val isn't in school she enjoys being able to commune with nature, especially at Ocean Park, New Jersey, because "the people are nice and friendly and I like sunshiny beaches". Val likes to be close to the "real things". She enjoys hiking with compatible people and compares her attitude toward nature with Thoreau's feelings expressed in Walden Pond.

"Young Life", a religious group, has quite possibly according to Val been "the happiest part of my life . . . Jesus had the answers". As for Val's future, she wants to "try a little of everything", to become a proverbial "jack of all trades". She also plans to become a phys. ed. instructor and, as she puts it, live like "today is the first day of the rest of your life!". Val, friendly, conscious of what's happening around her, genuine, Senior, '74.

If there is a Don Juan of Agawam High School, he's definitely Dave Michalak. The tall, blonde, good looking senior considers himself "Sex Appealing!"

A smile flashed to his face when asked his most memorable event in AHS.

"It's got to be when we beat Holyoke in 1972. That was the greatest thrill for me of my four-year football career. I really enjoy sports because of the physical contact and the satisfaction of victory. What have I gotten out of it? A broken finger, four concussions, but a great time!"

Dave was a co-captain this year for the football team and is the last four year started to play for Agawam. "Mac" is also a star on the basketball court and baseball field.

Ambitious Dave said he hopes someday to either become president of the United States or settle for the job of a used car salesman.

"Live life to the fullest. I feel a person should do what he expects of himself, not what others expect of him."

Rambunctious, active, athletic Dave Michalak, 1974.

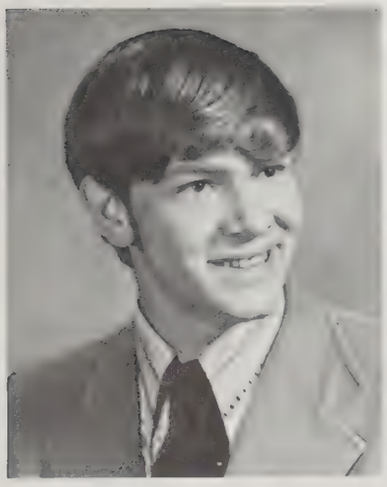

To capture the whole spirit of Joanne Morawski in a few words is almost a physical impossibility. Joanne seems to be one of the few people who can read others like a book while remaining unreadable herself. She enjoys her role as a "mysterious" personality, and describes herself as being a drop of quicksilver, a liquid-like metal that "isn't what it seems to be."

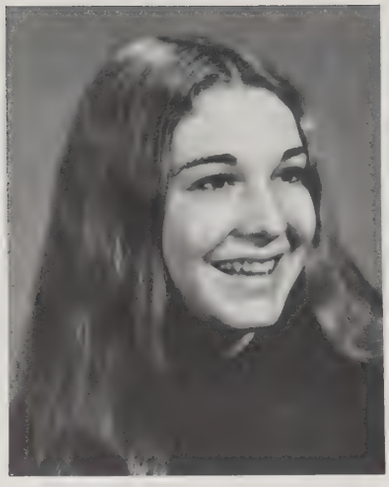

"It seems that whatever I do and wherever I go, strange things happen," states Joanne, who seems to believe that part of her existence is in the "Twilight Zone" ("I used to watch that a lot when I was a kid," she explains.). It might be concluded from all of this that Joanne is an avid fan of science fiction, yet, quite to the contrary, she's very down-to-earth. She values "the green color of living things," quill pens, antiques and writing letters by candlelight.

It has been stated that the town of Agawam is "culturally deprived". Joanne is at least one person that disproves this statement. She adores classical music, and is gifted with an "overwhelming curiosity" which prods her into voraciously reading "anything but how-to books." Her curiosity also makes world travel "to see the way other people live" an attractive proposition to her.

A good pseudonym for Greg Meister is Jean Claude Killy. Greg is an excellent skier and has been a member of the ski team for the last four years. He considers himself an improved skier.

"I've been skiing since I was in grammar school. I really love the excitement of skiing. It's a fantastic feeling when you're racing down the slope and can feel the wind rushing against your face. You can get away from everything when you're skiing and really get into the mountain!"

Schmeister, as his friends know him, says a highpoint for him in high school has to be the ski club's trip to Canada

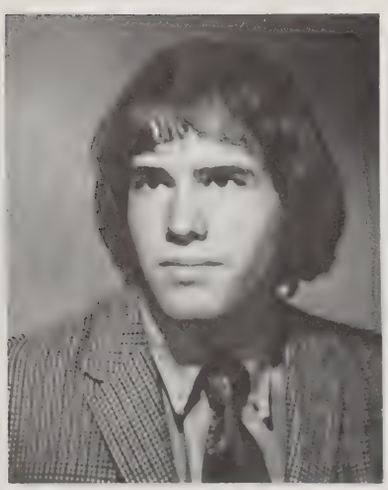

"What a great time! The skiing was fantastic and everyone really had fun. I made up my mind then that someday I'd like to become a ski pro!"

Greg likes eating spaghetti and munchies while watching Kung Fu.

"My philosophy of life? Get an education and be somebody. But always make sure to be individualistic!"

She says, "I love camping up north in the deep forests and woods — it's so peaceful and quiet . . . I wanna live there someday." It seems that the things most important to Carol are simplicity and solitude — her whole personality, everything she says and does reflects this.

Says Carol, "I really admire intelligent people, people who know just where they're going, and just what they want . . . I like to read deep books." Carol believes people can learn more from practical experiences and coming in contact with various people rather than in classroom situations.

Her greatest ambition is to provide a good home for her future husband and to have a stable home-life. "I like the security of a close friendship and a wonderful family."

The outstanding thing about Carol is that she is at peace in almost any situation . . . her philosophy is to live each minute as it comes and to enjoy life to its fullest, and she is succeeding. Carol, sweet, serene, tranquil, Senior, '74.

Ray Rivers, — the name in itself conjures up the picture, and the person does the rest. He dislikes T.V. and would much rather go to a rock concert with a bunch of the guys. He especially recalls the Steve Miller Band in Waterbury, Connecticut. Besides concerts, Ray likes parties best. He loves to go with four or five of his friends to any parties in the area, if no one happens to be having a party on any one night, he will "make one of my own." Says Ray, "we usually tear Larry Dowd's house apart — we try to confine our destruction to Larry's room, though." Then he remembers, "... one guy kicked a boot and broke a table in the process ... beer usually ends up all over the place — fifteen or twenty guys were at that one." At another party, Larry got one of his records smashed by being thrown by one of the guys. "His (Larry's) house is the only one we ever have a party in — they'd get thrown out of my house."

Ray plans to take a year's breather after graduation and "slum around."

Rick Sardella participates in sports both to enjoy himself and to win. Unlike many pseudo-modest athletes, he openly admits, "I will always put all out to win. Winning is the goal of any sport, not just the participation".

"Sar", as his friends call him, sees "a real change in the seniors, they're working together, the class is coming forth with more cooperation". As the vice president of his class, Rick especially realizes the need for class-wide cooperation. This explains why he's always done his part and then some.

As for the future, Rick would like to check out the world "just to make sure there's a world outside of Agawam". One of his favorite places in "the outside world" is the sea, he finds it relaxing.

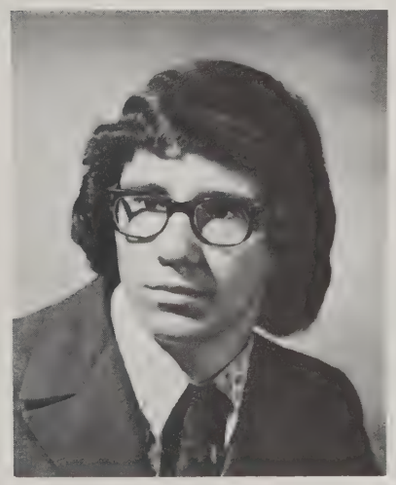

Even though one could usually find him playing chess in the library, Rick doesn't like to be thought of as "the intellectual type". However, one can find Rick quite friendly and forever grinning. This together with a refreshing sense of awareness make him easy to get along with, as anyone who is acquainted with him can verify. Rick, warm, sensitive, perceptive, a Senior, '74.

"You wanna interview me?"

She wears a thousand expressions in the course of a conversation — dancing eyebrows, flashing smile, eyes pleading for understanding. Martha Simone's two greatest pleasures in the world are ten-pin bowling and singing. "I like any and all music that tends to change my mood — to bring out unexpected emotions. I go from meek to belligerent, from one extreme to another. I guess it's because I have this inner need to make a splash in any group of people — I need to be noticed. My greatest fear is to be a nobody."

Martha loves to read about other cultures; she is interested in all kinds of fields — "I especially love religious philosophy." Concerned with broadening her outlook on life, she wants to understand all types of people and to fill her life with all types of experiences that she feels will be valuable.

Martha describes herself as "definitely not habitual because there's no tellin' what I'm gonna do. Also, I put things off — I guess those are some of my major faults."

She says the things most important to her are "making someone happy or someone making me happy — I wanna love and be loved."

"I'm constantly expanding in all directions, I'm looking for the ultimate good." That's him, our Senior class president Hal Stuart.

Hal feels he's had a burdened year full of responsibilities "presently I am in a way just looking towards the end of the year."

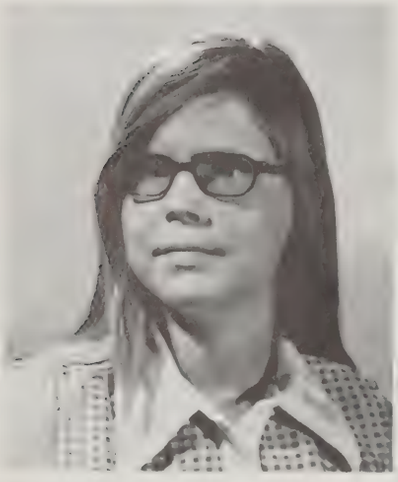

Judging and criticizing is a big part of Hal's life, for he is a looker. Hal watches life and makes his judgements, yet he is still quite involved.

Sports, especially track, are important to Hal. "I use it as a valve for distress, for thought and expression. I do my best thinking when I run. It's spiritual . . ."

A cabin in the middle of a semi-populated area is what Hal wants for the future. He would like to be "vulnerable and dependant on the ecology system around him."

Besides being class president and on the track team, Hal is also sports editor of the Mirror. He would like to be remembered for introducing the column "Just Asking" to AHS. This sometimes controversial column was its sometimes controversial author's pride and joy.

To Lisa, any activity is an outlet for her abundant energy. "Work's an outlet . . . it sorta inspires me. I feel lost without using energy."

Lisa enjoys O.S.A. because it teaches discipline and accepting authority, hers and others. "It helps a lot — I feel a part of something, not giving orders, but taking them like anyone else. The up and coming grades will benefit from it."

One philosophy of Lisa's is, "I know what I'm headed for, but I don't know what lies ahead." She realizes the possibility of something unexpected happening to change her plans.

"Hey, Mike, did you ever eat a pine tree?" might be just the sort of question to ask boisterous Mike Walsh, one of the few people left alive able to convincingly recreate the voice of naturalist Euell Gibbons (which doesn't say too much).

When not baffling the AHS student body with his "unique" talent over the public-address system, Mike may be found battering a soccer ball to death. He enjoys sports and plans to play soccer in college. When asked about it he replied, "I do it for fun, I like to get really wrapped up, getting pysched for it." Mike is a competitive person, the nice kind. "I do the very best I can. I don't play to rip apart and kill."

Along with being competitive he is very straight-forward and always looking towards the future. Mike builds for the future today, hoping to go far and be successful. To be a lawyer is a high goal to set and he wants to get into politics someday.

Today Mike is concerned with his friends. He hopes to see them in his plans for the future.

We gave one last look across to where we had learned so much . . .

This year's Sachem set a precedent by editorializing, spot-lighting the '74 seniors, creating a "player close-up" sports section and enlisting the juniors to see the '74 Sachem masters at work. It is my hope that our efforts and innovations are appreciated. I find it necessary, due to personal sacrifices made, to cite overtime put into Sachem this year by particular staff members. Ellen Fuller lent her designing and graphic ability, and to her 66 underclassmen and myself owe a debt. I cannot fail to acknowledge the reliability of my Associate editor, Tony Mowrer and Joanne Morawski who helped meet the deadlines on the 11th hour of the 31st day.

To express the part of Jonathan Livingston Seagull ideally found within Agawam High School has been Sachem's goal in 1974. Helping to make it all possible were Don Lendry, American Yearbook Representative; Loring Studios; and one who doesn't have feathers but teaches much — Mr. David Pulaski, advisor and professional photorgrapher.
